ABOUT SFJAZZ

Founded in 1983, SFJAZZ is the largest nonprofit presenter of jazz and education programs in the western United States. SFJAZZ presents over 100 concerts a year to over 100,000 fans and is dedicated to advancing the art form of jazz and cultivating new audiences through innovative programming, including: The San Francisco Jazz Festival, SFJAZZ Spring Season, SFJAZZ Collective, SFJAZZ Summerfest, SFJAZZ Hotplate and SFJAZZ Education.

The Collective has recently announced plans to build the SFJAZZ Center as a permanent home. This remarkable new facility, to be located in San Francisco’s vibrant Hayes Valley neighborhood, will be a 35,000 square-foot transparent free-standing structure designed by renowned architect Mark Cavagnero. With the SFJAZZ Center, jazz will take its place alongside major arts institutions such as the San Francisco Symphony, Opera and Ballet in the Civic Center performing arts district. Visit sfjazz.org to learn more about this exciting new development.

SFJAZZ, the leading nonprofit jazz organization on the West Coast and the presenter of the 2011 SFJAZZ Spring Season, opens its Spring 2012 concert season at the UMass Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.

The award-winning all-star SFJAZZ Collective roster includes alto saxophonist Antonio Hart, tenor saxophonist Mark Turner, vibraphonist Stefon Harris, trumpeter Avishai Cohen, trombonist Robin Eubanks, pianist Edward Simon, bassist Matt Penman and drummer Eric Harland. SFJAZZ Collective is an all-star jazz ensemble comprising eight of the finest performers and composers at work in jazz today. Launched in 2004 by SFJAZZ, the SFJAZZ Collective has quickly become one of the most exciting and acclaimed groups on the American and international jazz scenes. In addition to its outstanding line-up, the SFJAZZ Collective has been praised for its innovative approach to repertoire. Each year, the ensemble performs unique arrangements of compositions by a modern jazz master along with new pieces by the Collective members, commissioned by SFJAZZ.

Given the elite talent assembled in the SFJAZZ Collective, it is tempting, on first glance, to think of this ensemble as just another “all-star band.” But as the “Collective” portion of the group’s name suggests, these exceptional artists have come together in pursuit of a larger purpose. Through this pioneering approach, simultaneously honoring jazz’s recent history while championing the music’s up-to-the-minute directions, the Collective embodies SFJAZZ’s organizational commitment to jazz as a living, ever-relevant art form. The Collective’s 2012 personnel features trombonist Robin Eubanks, a two-time DownBeat “Trombonist of the Year”; trumpeter Avishai Cohen; and Grammy-nominated vibraphonist Stefon Harris. The incendiary rhythm section boasts 2010 Guggenheim Fellow Edward Simon on piano along with two of the most in-demand sidemen on the international scene—bassist Matt Penman and Eric Harland, winner of DownBeat #1 Rising Star drummer for the last three years.

After exploring the work of Ornette Coleman (2004), John Coltrane (2005), Herbie Hancock (2006), Thelonious Monk (2007), Wayne Shorter (2008), McCoy Tyner (2009) and Horace Silver (2010), the Collective takes on the material of pop music icon Stevie Wonder for its spring 2011 tour. The group approaches the work of Wonder, an artist outside of the jazz tradition, but one whose sophisticated songcraft and timeless melodies are more than worthy of exploration. A Motown Records star at 11 years old, Stevie Wonder released a string of classic pop albums in the 70s that fused his roots in the soul music of Detroit with elements of R&B, jazz and reggae into a singular vision that was both wildly successful on the charts and respected by music critics and colleagues alike. Winner of 25 Grammy’s (plus a Lifetime Achievement Award), Stevie was recently honored with the Gershwin Prize for Popular Song, presented to him by President Barack Obama. Wonder’s harmonically rich and spiritually uplifting songs are as timeless as those by George Gershwin and Cole Porter, and the Collective’s members are eager to demonstrate the great jazz elements within them. The Collective will perform new arrangements of Stevie’s work along with fresh original compositions by each of the eight Collective members.

“Playing Stevie Wonder’s music with the SFJAZZ Collective is exhilarating because it’s the music I grew up with,” says Harland. “It’s so great to now hear arrangements of some of those classics that I remember seeing my family dance to as a child. Now within the Collective family, it is an honorable opportunity to participate in Stevie’s music not just as a listener but as a performer and arranger.” The SFJAZZ Collective is a workshop band unlike any other in jazz. The group features a changing lineup with each member hand-selected to contribute their own unique sounds, styles and voices. They are all distinguished not just by degree, but diversity of talent and each member is a celebrated instrumentalist, an outstanding composer and arranger, and most are among today’s most lauded bandleaders.

The Collective also presents a global music perspective with musicians from New Zealand (Penman), Venezuela (Simon), and Israel (Cohen). The idea for the Collective arose from discussions between SFJAZZ’s founder and executive director, Randall Kline, and saxophonist and founding Collective member Joshua Redman. While deeply respectful of jazz’s origins and early traditions, SFJAZZ was concerned that the modern side of jazz, from roughly the mid-20th-century to the present day, was often overlooked in the public eye in comparison with the music of jazz’s so-called “Golden Age.” Both Kline and Redman were eager to showcase, in a manner that would resonate with jazz aficionados and newcomers alike, the artistic continuum from modern masters to today’s new generation of players. Much like chamber music, the music is designed for a small group of instruments to be performed in intimate settings and atmospheres including performing arts centers, concert halls and salons.

Spring 2012 Band Members

Antonio Hart, alto saxophone
(ANTONIO HART REPLACES MIGUEL ZENÓN FOR THE SPRING 2012 TOUR ONLY.)

One of the so-called “young lions” to emerge in the late 1980s and first recognized for his influential work with trumpeter Roy Hargrove, Grammy-nominated altoist Antonio Hart has established himself as one of the finest instrumentalists in jazz. He is a graduate of the Berklee School and has recorded and performed with a plethora of jazz greats including Art Blakey, Dizzy Gillespie, McCoy Tyner and Nat Adderley. Antonio has maintained a long-term relationship with bass master Dave Holland and balances his performing schedule as a full-time professor of jazz studies at the Aaron Copland School of Music at Queens College. He has released seven acclaimed albums, including his latest Chiaroscuro release, All We Need, which features tenor sax legend Jimmy Heath. Antonio Hart replaces Miguel Zenón for the Spring 2012 tour only.

Mark Turner, tenor saxophone

Described by JazzTimes as “an extremely thoughtful and cerebral player,” Mark Turner has been quietly building a reputation as a musician’s musician. He attended Berklee College Of Music in the late ’80s where he met musicians that would figure prominently in his later work, including Kurt Rosenwinkel and Joshua Redman. Turner has recorded five critically acclaimed albums as a leader and has also performed or recorded with artists such as Dave Holland, Brad Mehldau, Lee Konitz, Dave Douglas and Lee Konitz. His current project is the trio FLY with bassist Larry Grenadier and drummer Jeff Ballard. Their latest album, Sky And Country, appeared on ECM in 2009.

Trumpeter Avishai Cohen is a leading figure on the international jazz scene and one of the most sought-after players of his generation, “an assertive and accomplished trumpeter with a taste for modernism” according to The New York Times. Originally from Tel Aviv, Israel, Cohen began performing at age 10. Relocating to the U.S. to attend the Berklee College Of Music, he placed third in the prestigious Thelonious Monk Trumpet Competition in 1997. After developing his craft alongside contemporaries such as pianist Jason Lindner, Cohen has expanded his sensitive palette to include African music (with Lionel Loueke), funk (Me’shell Ndegeocello), folk/pop (Keren Ann) and effects-laden avant-garde explorations. He has recorded five heralded albums as a leader, most recently the phenomenal trio CD Introducing Triveni with bassist Omer Avital and drummer Nasheet Waits.

Robin Eubanks, trombone

A five-time “Trombonist of the Year” in the DownBeat Magazine Critics Poll, Robin Eubanks is the premier jazz trombonist of his generation. In addition to leading his own groups, EB3 and Mental Images, Eubanks has performed and composed on Grammy-winning recordings with Dave Holland and Michael Brecker. In addition, he has worked with music legends Art Blakey, McCoy Tyner, Elvin Jones and the Rolling Stones, to name a few. The native Philadelphian is the recipient of composition grants from Chamber Music America and ASCAP. He is a sought-after educator and is now a tenured professor of trombone at the renowned Oberlin Conservatory and Adjunct Professor at Philadelphia’s University of the Arts.

Stefon Harris, vibraphone & marimba

Stefon Harris is committed to exploring the rich potential of jazz composition and blazing new trails on the vibraphone. A graduate of the Manhattan School of Music, Harris has received numerous accolades including the Jazz Journalists Association’s “Best Mallet Player” for four years running (2000-2003) and “#1 Rising Star Vibraphonist” in the 2006 DownBeat Critics Poll. DIANE STERN, TOUR MANAGER/DIRECTOR

ENSEMBLE MEMBERS

Valérie Doucet has always wanted to be part of the Circus, joining a Gymnastics Centre at the age of 6. When she was 12 she left gymnastics behind to co-open Les Fous Du Cirque, a small school brought together for the love of Circus. As the school expanded Valérie did more and more shows and festivals to expand her skills in both silks and hoop. After turning 15 she finished high school while attending the National Circus School of Montreal, getting into a college program and specializing in hand balancing. Valérie’s performance experiences include performing in Palazzo Colombino, a variete cabaret in Germany and working for Cirque en Vol and Cirque éloize. Valérie joined Circa in 2011.

Jarred Dewey grew up as a member of “Cirkidz,” an Adelaide based youth circus with whom he trained, performed and toured with for over five years. He was a founding member of the circus/physical theatre company “The Rambutan Circus Collective” which was awarded “Best Circus/Theatre Show by Emerging Ensemble” in 2007 Adelaide Fringe for its season of “Menagerie.” In 2010 Jarred graduated from the National Institute of Circus Arts (NICA) where he specialized in contortion handstands and swinging trapeze.

Casey Douglas was born in Perth, Western Australia. Right from the beginning he was a hyper-active child playing all the sports possible, leading him to ten years as a competitive gymnast.

After completing his degree at the National Institute of Circus Arts (NICA) he received a grant for a training project in Chattellaraut, France where he completed further studies with seven Handstand Professors from around the European Federation of Professional Circus Schools (FEDEC).

On returning to Melbourne, Casey ran Hardy Street Productions, a Circus Training and Arts Centre before becoming a founding member of ThisSideUp Acrobatics. Through this Company he has performed at Chalon and Aullriac in France, London and the Edinburgh Fringe, Watch This Space and Galway International Art Festivals. ThisSideUp was also commissioned by the Sydney Festival to create Smoke and Mirror, which won Best New Australian Work, Best Cabaret Performer and Best New Score in the prestigious Helpmann Awards. Casey is looking forward to the challenges Circa will bring his way both for his mind and his body.

Darcy Grant joined the Flying Fruit Fly Circus at age 13, graduating when he was 18. At 19 he joined Rock ‘n’ Roll Circus now known as Circa. Darcy specializes in floor based acrobatics and pointless party tricks from a performance perspective but his talents also extend to training and directing having led

ABOUT THE SHOW & COMPANY

CIRCA’s self titled creation is movement at its most adventurous and dangerous. Seven performers move from highly connected acrobatic and tumbling sequences to fast paced moments of great intricacy where precision and timing are everything. Their signature style combines physical beauty, formidable circus skills and an immersive use of sound, light and projection. The result is a new form of captivating circus performance that is impossible to forget.

“There are hoops and ropes and sticks, but mostly there is just astonishing physical mastery.”

Australia’s CIRCA is a company of national and international significance with an impressive reputation of innovation, touring and developing repertoire and local workshop programs. Having performed in over eighteen countries since 2006, its work continues to be rapturously received by audiences, presenters and critics alike. Artistic Director Yaron Lifschitz describes Circa’s work as one that defies description. “It is, in its heart, a report on what is alive, nourishing and contemporary in circus. It is also a strange and curious new beast; at once savage, funny, lyrical, pure and challenging.”

ABOUT TAO

Since the beginning of TAO, director and founder Ikuo Fujitaka has sought out to create a world-class entertainment group that incorporates both the complexity and diversity of the traditional Taiko drum. Enchanted by this instrument, TAO has worked to free Taiko from its confines of being the “successor of Japan’s traditional culture” and has in turn created a totally new genre of entertainment.

In order to achieve his goals, Mr. Fujitaka implemented a regimented and meticulous approach to the show calling for only the most disciplined and talented artists. Because of this, TAO requires not only physical strength and ability from its performers but also an innate sense of rhythm and expressiveness. It is that innate sense that enables the audience to view a mind-boggling spectacle of dance and music, while at the same time obtaining respect for the traditional instrument in its purest sense.

Since the inception of Mr. Fujitaka’s vision, TAO has been seen in 17 countries and 400 cities with 500 performances each year. To date, TAO has been seen by over 5 million spectators worldwide. Adored in Japan and across the world, they present an unprecedented and timeless Taiko performance, bringing a brand new genre to the stage.

TAO set up a living and training base at a 120,000 square foot site, surrounded by nature in a national park at Kyushu’s Kuju Plateau which is considered one of Japan’s most picturesque areas. At the site, they receive inspiration from the rich natural environment that surrounds them, grapple with the meaning of real music, undertake the strenuous training of athletes and continue to produce unique pieces of music that have continually overturned the Japanese image of traditional Taiko. TAO receives enormous support in Japan, and has become renowned as “a Japanese Taiko Group with a difference”.

“After hearing saxophonist Ernie Watts, it’s easy to imagine that he possesses superhuman talents similar to those held by members of the fictional Fantastic Four. He breathes fire, can cool with ice, whip up a storm, and shape his sax sound in ways otherworldly. This is a powerful, yet sensitive, technically Herculean, yet human, complex yet elegantly beautiful player - no, a marvel!”

Nicholas F. Mondello, All About Jazz

Two-time Grammy Award winner Ernie Watts is one of the most versatile and prolific saxophone players on the music scene. In a diverse career that has spanned more than 40 years, he has been featured on over 500 recordings by artists ranging from Cannonball Adderley to Frank Zappa, always exhibiting his unforgettable trademark sound.

After 15 solo records for a variety of labels, large and small, Watts started Flying Dolphin Records, a company he runs with his wife Patricia. Flying Dolphin (distributed by Burnside Distribution Corp.) is a new chapter for the artist’s creative expression. “Through my years of touring and recording,” he says, “I’ve played in every kind of musical setting. I’ve reached a place in my life where I need to make music on my terms, and starting my own label provided me with a new sense of freedom.”

Watts started playing saxophone at age 13. He went with a friend who was enrolling in the local school music program, and found himself carrying home an instrument as well. “I was a self-starter; no one ever had to tell me to practice,” remembers Watts. His discipline combined with natural talent began to shape his life. He won a scholarship to the Wilmington Music School in Delaware, where he studied classical music and technique. Though they had no jazz program, his mother provided the spark by giving him his own record player for Christmas and enrolling him in a record club. That first record club promotional selection turned out to be the brand-new Miles Davis album Kind of Blue. “When I first heard John Coltrane play, it was like someone put my hand into a light socket,” Watts says. He started to learn jazz by ear, often falling asleep at night listening to a stack of Coltrane records. Although he would enroll briefly at West Chester University in music education, he soon won a Downbeat Scholarship to the Berklee College of Music in Boston, renowned for jazz.

When Gene Quill quit Buddy Rich’s Big Band in Boston, trombonist Phil Wilson (an educator at Berklee), was asked to recommend a replacement; a young Ernie Watts got the job. He left Berklee for that important spot, staying with Rich from 1966-1968 and touring the world. Watts then moved to Los Angeles and began working in the big bands of Gerald Wilson and Oliver Nelson. With the Nelson band, Watts visited Africa on a U.S. State Department tour in 1969. They played in Chad, Niger, Mali, Senegal, and the Republic of the Congo, which included the opportunity to meet and jam with the local African musicians. Remembering the experience, Watts recalls Africa as “a timeless land.” “It was amazing to play a government sponsored concert in the evening, then take a walk the next morning and see a camel caravan coming in from the desert, laden with giant salt blocks. That had been happening for thousands of years! Walking out into the desert at night, I felt the tremendous quiet there, something I had never experienced before, or since.” It was also with Oliver Nelson that Watts had the occasion to record with the legendary Thelonious Monk on Monk’s Blues (Columbia).

During the 1970s and ’80s, Watts was immersed in the busy production scene of Los Angeles. His signature sound was heard on countless TV shows and movie scores, almost all the early West Coast Motown sessions, and with pop stars such as Aretha Franklin and Steely Dan. Though the pop music genre placed narrow confines on his performance, the studio sessions allowed Watts the chance to constantly hone and refine his tone. After years in the studios, Watts’ passion for acoustic jazz never left him. At the end of a long day of sessions, he could frequently be heard playing fiery jazz in late-night clubs around Los Angeles.

In 1983, the film composer Michel Colombier wrote an orchestral piece entitled “Nightbird” for Watts. At the work’s inaugural performance at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion in Los Angeles, Charlie Haden came backstage to introduce himself. The meeting led to Watts performing with Haden’s Liberation Music Orchestra, and to tours with Pat Metheny’s Special Quartet, which included Haden.

Watts’ tour with Metheny’s group in the late 1980s found him on a triple bill with Sun Ra and the Miles Davis Band -- a turning point for the artist. “The serious energy of Pat’s music convinced me to make the commitment to this level of performance. Every night I also absorbed Sun Ra and Miles and could not deny the power I was feeling in the music.” Watts’ charter membership in Haden’s critically-acclaimed Quartet West, with whom he has toured and recorded for twenty-five years, and his body of work for the audiophile Japanese label JVC Music continued to demonstrate his talent for, and commitment to, jazz.

His four recordings for JVC Music are some of the finest of his extensive career. For these projects, he surrounded himself with several of his favorite players; Jack DeJohnette, Arturo Sandoval, Kenny Barron, Mulgrew Miller, Eddie Gomez, Jimmy Cobb and Marc Whitfield. The music encompassed both jazz classics and new pieces by Watts. Between his stint with JVC and starting his own label Flying Dolphin, Watts recorded Reflections with friend and fellow musician Ron Feuer. This 2003 duet release features serene ballads for saxophone and piano. He also recorded duet CDs with talented German pianist (and member of his European quartet) Christof Saenger for Laika Records, which now distributes Flying Dolphin in Germany.

Watts’ eclectic mix of career activities includes current work with vocalist Kurt Elling in a tribute to John Coltrane and Johnny Hartman with string quartet. The project “Dedicated To You” (recorded live at Lincoln Center for Concord Records) earned Elling his first Grammy Award for Best Jazz Vocal Album in 2010. He has also taken part in Jazz at the Kennedy Center for Billy Taylor and recently appeared in Australia with Billy Cobham and orchestra. A typical year finds Watts touring Europe with his own quartet in spring and fall, in Asia as a featured guest artist and performing at summer festivals throughout North America and Europe, often with Charlie Haden’s Quartet West. He gives back to the music by conducting student clinics and master classes. Watts has also compiled a collection of orchestral arrangements for guest soloist appearances with symphonies. And there is the occasional “hometown gig” with the Ernie Watts Quartet in California, where he is still based.

Summing it all up, Watts describes his ongoing journey. “I see music as the common bond having potential to bring all people together in peace and harmony. All things in the physical world have vibration; the music I choose to play is the energy vibration that touches a common bond in people. I believe that music is God singing through me, an energy to be used for good.”
